

Salbutamol (blue inhaler) treatment log

Date	Time	Symptoms	Puffs given
It has been a day since your child was discharged — the number of puffs of the blue inhaler they are taking should be less. Please log the frequency below and any symptoms they have.
It has been two days since your child was discharged —the number of puffs and how often they are using the blue inhaler should be less. If not the case, please ensure your child is medically reviewed.
Are you happy your child is getting back to normal? If your child is regularly requiring the blue inhaler 5 days after discharge, please see your GP for review.
